Rally to the Court-House To-night.

Let every Democrat come out this evening, and give an impulse to the glorious cause of Democracy in this State. In many of our cities Ratification Meetings have already taken place. Besides the delegates from every State, countless multitudes of the best men in the country were present to witness the proceeding, and aid, by their counsel and advice, in the great work to be performed. Cincinnati was crowded to its utmost capacity. Most of the States could have held conventions with more men than frequently attend such bodies.

Those posted up in political affairs were surprised that there was no stirring of political opinion or objects. The Democracy of every State had passed substantially the same platform on the political questions of the day. The opposition, however, flattered themselves, that as they had quailed and failed to please at every gathering, the Democracy would do likewise. Indeed, they entertained their simple readers with outgoings that effect. They had an eager longing for a discussion in the Democratic Convention. There might be harmony, but like the person who didn't want all men saved, they hoped better things. The committee on a platform found no difference of opinion; and when the resolutions were reported to the Convention, and the States were called in succession, the delegates rose to their seats, and announced the common response: Ayo. So answered the delegation from Massachusetts; so answered the representatives of South Carolina. They, we presume, are to be counted as the Free-swinging wing of the Democratic party. It will be remembered, moreover, that, in 1852, Buchanan was supported through several days halloing at Baltimore. He was then the choice of nearly the whole South, and they persisted in voting their preference with the most obstinate pertinacity. Buchanan is the same now he was then, and he is now the first choice of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Louisiana, and Tennessee; for, although the last named State did not cast her first vote for him, she showed her preference at an early period, and confirmed it by a steady adherence to her choice to the last. Know-Nothings are to be told, then, by the organ, that Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Louisiana, Tennessee, and a portion of Kentucky, belong to the Free-swinging wing of the Democratic party; and Know-Nothings are to expose themselves by paddling out this idea.

What is very remarkable, the rest of the South voted for Franklin Pierce; and this same malicious scribbler asserts, that Pierce made all his appointments from the Free-swinging wing of the Democratic party. Now, it has been charged, that the President appointed men to office in New York, who belonged to an organization with Free-soil propensities; but it has not been pretended that the men he appointed were Free-soilers; never has such a charge been made, in reference to appointments in other States; nor was it ever asserted before, that he made all his appointments from Free-soilers. We don't know before that Guthrie, and Jeff. Davis, and Dobbin, and Pierre Soule, belonged to any Free-swinging wing anywhere. Indeed, if the President has appointed a Free-swinging anywhere, he didn't know it. If the editor of the Journal knows a single apostle of Free-swing anywhere, he has not, notwithstanding his brief political career, his name the man the name the man. We pronounce the charge false, false, false, and we challenge the slanderer to name such an apostle, if he has any knowledge of him.

But while Pierce is thus charged with making all his appointments from the Free-swing wing of his party, the whole South voted for his re-nomination at Cincinnati, with the exceptions we have named.

Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Arkansas, and Texas, chose, in preference to all others, for President, the man who made all his appointments from the Free-swing wing of his party!

The second on the ticks is the favorite of Kentucky, a man whose talents and eloquence are unsurpassed; whose high character, bearing, and spotless character, have won for him a fame that will only grow brighter with riper years. Every Kentuckian knows J. C. BRECKINRIDGE; and notwithstanding his brief political career, his name is familiar to all parts of the Union. A more eloquent and popular ticket was never presented to the American people; and there never was a crisis in the life of the nation, when such a ticket was needed. Let every pair of rally to its support. It is the ticket of man and order; it is the true American ticket, standing on the old, time-honored, American platform. We believe it will be sustained by the electoral vote of five-fifths of the States, and that its success will put an end to the pestilent and incendiary fictions that now curse the country. Day breaks upon the darkness and confusion in the political arena, and the foul birds of ill omen will hiss to their hiding places, not soon to disturb the country with their croaking. All is ready, and we hope our friends in this Commonwealth, as well as elsewhere, will set the ball in motion. They have a ticket that can present with pride and pleasure; that they can support with enthusiasm worthy of the great cause at stake. Let our speakers be heard on every neck, and we challenge the slanderer to name such an apostle, if he has any knowledge of him.

But while Pierce is thus charged with making all his appointments from the Free-swing wing of his party, the whole South voted for his re-nomination at Cincinnati, with the exceptions we have named.
